Elmore Price was raised in the Big Sandy, Tennessee area, playing basketball and baseball at Big Sandy School from 1934 through 1936. While there are few records of his play during that time, his career in athletics is noteworthy. He received a scholarship to attend Freed-Hardeman College, attaining an Associate's degree and playing basketball for two years. He, along with his high school friend William Hall, then moved out to Southern California to play basketball for the new team at George Pepperdine University. (See Page 2)
